

THE WARSAW SUMMIT

CONSERVATIVE LEADERS OF EUROPE

The participants of the conference share a common and deep conviction, that the EU is made up of free and equal nation states, bound by numerous areas of close cooperation. We share this conviction with many millions of citizens across EU Member States.

Only through such a model of European cooperation can we save the EU from further crises and tensions, and put a stop to the disturbing idea of creating a Europe governed by a self-appointed elite. We reject the arbitrary application of Union Law, bending or even violating the Treaties. Only the sovereign institutions of the states have full democratic legitimacy. European institutions do not enjoy the same legitimacy, and therefore they should play a subservient role in the political architecture to the nation state.

Equally, for this reason they cannot become a tool of social engineering aiming at creating a new “European nation”. Examples of such social engineering could be, among other things, the attempts to ideologically alter our languages in a way which will detach a human being from their culture and heritage, like the recent decision of the European Commission to remove the word “Christmas” from the public sphere. Such a concept of the nation has never existed, does not exist today nor can it exist in the future. The participants declare their will to cooperate in the spirit of solidarity, at various levels and forums with all the parties and organizations that hold the Europe’s unique heritage and the idea of a Europe of Nations dear.

The participants also discussed closer cooperation of their respective parties in the European Parliament, including organizing joint meetings and aligning the votes on common issues, such as protection of sovereignty of the Member States and stance on illegal immigration.

The participants have also agreed that within the next couple of months another conference will be organized in Spain in response to the ongoing debate about the Future of Europe.
